PROFILE

For almost 30 years, Hans Lykke Hansen has advised clients including local and regional authorities, housing associations, utility companies and commercial businesses in the fields of construction and procurement law. He advises on the planning of procurement procedures, the review and drafting of tender documents, the subsequent review of tenders received, participation in contract negotiations and drafting of the final contractual documents as well as the handling of disputes in the fields of construction and procurement law.

Hans has acted as legal adviser in very many of the most important building and construction projects in Denmark over the past 20-25 years, including the Great Belt Link, the Øresund Link (both land installations and tunnel) and a wide range of small- and large-scale building projects, procurement of IT services, etc.

He has conducted several court and arbitration proceedings before the High Court, the Supreme Court and the Danish Building and Construction Arbitration Board as well as several cases before the Complaints Board for Public Procurement. He has also acted as an ad hoc arbitrator in several proceedings.

Hans speaks the Scandinavian languages and English.
